Online Education Resource Creator

Fully Remote | Freelance | Canada

ETeachingShare is a Canadian marketplace created for educators, professionals, and experienced individuals who want to share their knowledge and create valuable educational resources for a wider learning community. We are seeking thoughtful, creative, and resourceful Online Education Resource Creators. This is a flexible, freelance opportunity, not an employment position. Creators choose what they want to teach, what resources they want to develop, and when they want to work.

Creators may develop lesson plans, worksheets, activity packages, presentations, assessments, instructional videos, mini-courses, guides, projects, and other original educational resources. You do not have to be a traditional classroom teacher. We welcome current and retired educators, tutors, instructors, curriculum developers, business professionals, tradespeople, technicians, consultants, and individuals with valuable industry or practical experience.

Compensation

Creator compensation is based on the quality of work, knowledge and expertise in the subject area, complexity and usefulness of the resources created, and community interest in the content.

How to Apply

No formal résumé is required. Instead, submit a 1–2-page Creator Profile introducing yourself and your experience.

Your Creator Profile should include your educational, professional, or industry background; areas of expertise; topics or subjects you would like to teach; the age group, learner level, or audience you would like to reach; and the types of educational resources you would like to create.

Your expertise may come from education, business, technology, healthcare, trades, construction, automotive, manufacturing, agriculture, finance, hospitality, creative industries, or other professional and practical fields.

To teach in English Language Teaching, your background should be with TESL designation with a bachelors and training from TESL Ontario, TESL Canada and or other TESL designations across Canada.

We are interested in what you know, what you can teach, and what you can create.

Please email your Creator Profile to eteachingmadeeasy@gmail.com.
